

Karlshochschule International University in Karlsruhe is an innovative foundation university with a cultural orientation. It offers Bachelor and Master programs and has about 650 students, 15 professors and 35 administrative employees.

For the upcoming winter term 2014/15 we are looking for visiting lecturers (m/f)

in the module “International Economic Relations” (INER).

This module is part of the specific program in “International Marketing Management”. Students who have successfully participated in this module should be able to describe the central elements and relationships within the international economic system as regards its development and interactions and evaluate the activities of relevant international economic organizations (e.g. WTO, IMF, World Bank). They should be able to analyze and assess international trade, and trade within and between different economic regions, with regard to its characteristics and to deal with current global economic trends critically.

Course language: English
Lecture period: October 2014 to January 2015 (blocked lectures are possible)

Requirements:

Completed degree program in Economics, preferably as a Ph.D. or comparable academic qualification.
Teaching experience in degree programs and didactical ability.

Please send your application by 15th of August 2014 by email as one pdf-document to Benjamin Staudt bstaudt@karlshochschule.de.

www.karlshochschule.de