

Masaryk University

Faculty of Arts

Pedagogy

Mgr. Gabriela Pleschová, MSc., Ph.D.

The Long-Term Effects of Educational Development Programmes.

Collaboration, Trust, and Leadership

Habilitation thesis

2024

I declare that I prepared the habilitation thesis independently using the mentioned sources and literature.

.....

Signature of the author of the thesis

Dedication

To the memory of Joanna Renc Roe, a strong advocate for student-centred learning, reflective teaching and the scholarship of teaching and learning.

Acknowledgements

Research for this work has been co-funded by the European Commission through the Erasmus+ Cooperation partnerships project BELONG: Better Education through Long-term Investment into Inclusiveness and Student and Staff Wellbeing, 2021-1-SK01-KA220-HED-000023528:
www.fphil.uniba.sk/belong

Data collection for this work was conducted by Matthew Mokhefi-Ashton, Agnes Simon, Mátyás Szabó, and Zuzana Vařejková. Data coding was performed by Lucia Hlavatá, Natalia Marakhovska, Paulo Nascimento Sousa, and Agnes Simon. Lynn McAlpine contributed substantially to the research design, along with Agnes Simon, Eszter Simon, Mátyás Szabó, Jitka Vidláková, and other collaborators of the BELONG project.

Eszter Simon managed this study's ethics approval process at Nottingham Trent University. John Peter Butler Barrer and Linda M. Steyne kindly reviewed my translations of interview quotes from Masaryk University programme graduates. Mikaela Auerbach from the University of California, Berkeley, provided assistance with English language proofreading, the funding for which was covered by the Faculty of Arts, Comenius University Bratislava.

The following colleagues reviewed and offered feedback on draft chapters: Nicholas Bremner, Huang Hoon Chng, Helga Dorner, Alexis Hart, Rachel Forsyth, Miriam Glessmer, Katarina Mårtensson, Lynn McAlpine, Anne Nevgi, Kathleen M. Quinlan, Marvi Remmik, Anna Serbati, Eszter Simon, Julie Timmermans, and Vanessa Woods. Any remaining errors or misinterpretations are my sole responsibility.

I extend special thanks to all the interviewed programme graduates and their colleagues for generously sharing their insights with the research team.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

LIST OF ABBREVIATIONS	10
LIST OF TABLES	11
SECTION I. EDUCATIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMMES AND THE CHANGE THEY ARE HOPED TO FOSTER	12
Chapter 1. Student-centred learning and reflective teaching	12
Student-centred learning	13
The definition and emergence of SCL as a concept	13
Relevance of SCL	14
Evaluation of SCL in this research	15
Helping teachers teach in a student-centred way	17
Reflective teaching	18
The definition and emergence of reflective teaching as a concept	18
Relevance of reflective teaching and the role of context in impacting reflection	18
Ways to stimulate and assess reflective teaching	19
Evaluation of reflection in this research	20
References	21
Chapter 2. Design of research on the long-term impact of four educational development programmes	26
Research sites and collaborators	26
Collected data	26
Sampling	27
Approaches to interviewing	28
Interview duration	29
Research ethics	29
Data coding and analysis	29
Perspectives taken by the research team	32
Limitations of this research	33
References	33
SECTION II. FOUR CASE STUDIES	35
Chapter 3. A university committed to transforming how students learn in the region: Central European University	35
CEU's mission	35
Institutional goals related to education and support of student-centredness	35
The educational development programme	36
Programme definitions of student-centredness and reflectiveness in teaching	37
Sampling strategy and sample characteristics	37

References	37
Chapter 4. A fast-growing, ambitious university: Masaryk University	39
MUNI's mission	39
Institutional goals related to education and support of student-centredness	39
The educational development programme	39
Programme definitions of student-centredness and reflectiveness in teaching	40
Sampling strategy and sample characteristics	40
References	41
Chapter 5. An institution that trains both scholars and teachers: The Slovak Academy of Sciences	42
SAS mission	42
Institutional goals related to education and support of student-centredness	42
The educational development programme	42
Programme definitions of student-centredness and reflectiveness in teaching	43
Sampling strategy and sample characteristics	44
References	44
Chapter 6. A university that holds the Gold for teaching: Nottingham Trent University	45
NTU's mission	45
Institutional goals related to education and support of student-centredness	45
The educational development programme	45
Programme definitions of student-centredness and reflectiveness in teaching	46
Sampling strategy and sample characteristics	46
References	47
SECTION III. DIVERSE PATHS OF GRADUATES FROM ED PROGRAMMES	48
Chapter 7. Four paths of higher education teachers	48
The pragmatic teacher path	48
Path summary	48
Alex	49
Characteristics and teaching approach	49
Student-centredness	49
Reflective teaching	50
Use of student and colleague feedback	50
Influence from context	51
Overall characteristics	51
The enthusiastic student-centred innovator path	51
Path summary	51
Bailey	52
Characteristics and teaching approach	52

Student-centredness	52
Reflective teaching	53
Use of student and colleague feedback	53
Influence from context	54
Overall characteristics	54
The dedicated teacher frustrated with their institution path	55
Path summary	55
Cameron	55
Characteristics and teaching approach	55
Student-centredness	55
Reflective teaching	56
Use of student and colleague feedback	57
Influence from context	57
Overall characteristics	58
The converted teacher-centred scholar path	58
Path summary	58
Characteristic and teaching approach	59
Teacher-centredness	59
Reflective teaching	60
Use of student and colleague feedback	60
Influence from context	61
Overall characteristics	61
Evaluation of the four paths	61
References	62
Chapter 8. Student-centred and reflective teaching of ED programme graduates five and more years on	63
What literature reveals about long-term results from ED	64
Student-centred and reflective teaching of programme graduates from this research five and more years on	65
Understanding of student-centred learning	65
Reflective teaching practices	69
Contextual influences	71
Discussion	72
Student-centred learning	72
Reflective teaching	72
Contextual factors	72
Conclusion	73
References	74
Chapter 9. Teaching collaboration	76

What counts as teaching collaboration and what the literature reports on it	76
Method	79
Teaching collaboration of graduates from ED programmes	79
More than half of graduates engage in teaching collaboration	80
Graduates collaborate with different individuals and in a variety of ways	80
Sporadic collaboration with coaches/mentors from ED programmes	81
Graduates seek colleagues with similar values but learn from different styles and ideas	81
Unclear impact of teaching collaboration on reflectiveness	82
Unclear influence of teaching collaboration on major changes of thinking and practice	83
Teaching collaboration does not create collaborative relationships for students	83
Discussion	83
Conclusion	85
References	86
Chapter 10. Trusting relationships of ED programme graduates	89
Findings from the trust literature	89
Trust and teaching practice	89
Trust and reflectiveness	90
Trust and innovation of teaching	90
Methods	90
Trust as a potential determinant of programme graduates' teaching practice	91
Trust and teaching practice	91
Trust and reflectiveness	93
Trust and innovation of teaching	93
Graduates' trustworthiness as perceived by superiors and colleagues	94
Discussion	95
Conclusion	96
References	97
Chapter 11. ED programme graduates serving as educational leaders	99
How the literature conceptualises educational leadership	99
Methods	101
ED programme graduates as educational leaders	102
Educational leadership roles of graduates from ED programmes	102
Programme graduates' reflectiveness and SCL versus their formal educational leadership	103
Recognition of programme graduates' teaching	104
Discussion	105
Conclusion and recommendations	105
References	106
SECTION IV. CONCLUSIONS	109

Chapter 12. The implications of this study for educational development, institutional practice and research	109
Student-centred learning and reflective teaching	110
Contextual factors that shape ED programme graduates' teaching	111
Teaching collaboration	112
Trustful relationships	112
Educational leadership	112
The role of coaching and mentoring	113
Value attributed to the ED programme	114
Implications from this study for institutions offering educational development	115
Implications for institutional practices	115
Implications for educational development	116
Implications for future research	117
Concluding thoughts	118
References	119
ABSTRACT	121