Identification and Assessment of Intangible Benefits of Enterprise Information Portals: Designing of a Method

- assessment vs evaluation: -What do you want to assess? The intangible benefits or the identification of intangible benefits? - How you can assess something you can't measure? (<http://www.edpsycinteractive.org/topics/intro/sciknow.html>)

Polyphasic taxonomy of technologically significant strains of yeast

Characterization and differentiation of brewer's and wine yeasts in the Czech Republic

- I think the title or at least your subtitle should include the word " methods" in this case - when you want to create a new methods.

1) Human Movement Models for Similarity Search

2) Human Movement Similarity Models and Their Applications+++

- you should clarify the term of "similarity". What is the purpose of the models?

Metabolic engineering of Escherichia coli for degradation of 1,2,3-trichloropropane (article)

- nice topic, but metabolic engineering is too general. Can you be more specific (what gene or metabolic pathways)? And what about your dissertation in LL?

Role of gender in drug addiction (pres)

- Nice topic ;) Still, I would go with something more detailed, this one seems too general. + creation and optimization of purposed TCP degradation pathway in E. coli

- do you optimize the process (conditions) or the pathway in Escherichia or both?
How many genes are involved in this process?

"The Influence of the Rehabilitation on the Foot Arch in the Diagnosis of Children's Flat Feet".

- For me it looks clear enough. If you want to be more precise, I would suggest adding a subtitle according to methodological approach to your research.

"Multicultural aspects of management in multinational companies".

-It is too general in my point of view. I don't know if it is worldwide, in Czech Republic. What are multicultural aspects? I see, that in your field it can be clear, but I don't know it.

-I don't like the prefix multi two times in the title. I would try to think about some synonym.

- I agree with Michal and would like to know if it's possible to use "cultural aspects of management in multinational companies" instead.
