

Prudent practices of academic writing

In the area of academic writing, young researchers usually do not know how to start.. A lot has already been written about this complicated issue of writing process [1, 2, 3]. The following text attempts to give the readers guidance on how to write efficiently and successfully.

How to start

It is advisable to not let one's own anxiety obstruct the person from writing. First, write down all ideas you have without considering the structure of the text. Focus on writing and do not let anything distract you from the process. For example, turn off your facebook and twitter for a certain time. Decide on your time management and uphold it. If you struggle with following your strategy, it is recommended to start with a short period of time you dedicate to writing only. Should you require to overcome your personal distaste for writing, start with writing down the first points that come your mind. Regardless your nonconformity with text quality we suggest that you pursue the task.

How to continue

After you feel you have written down the main ideas, the next step is to select relevant concepts and reorganise them according to chosen or given text structure. Try to think about the final product as of a story. You start with background description to introduce to the reader. From this point you guide the reader through your argumentation up to the final conclusion. Be sure not to lose the reader's attention.

Conclusion

You have been presented with proven methods of prudent academic writing for PhD. Candidates. The text gives advice on how to initiate the writing process, overcome your hesitation and create a clear structure. The future research will deal with the difficult consequences of process editing.

References

- [1] Bytheway, Julia „Academic Writing“ 2014
  - [2] Forward, Bernadette „Academic Writing II“ 2014
  - [3] Stepanek, Libor „Academic Writing III“ 2014
-

Facebook> 5 Tips to become an efficient academic writer.

Do not let your fear overcome you.

Write down all ideas without thinking.

Turn off your facebook and twitter.

Introduce your research to reader.

Don't lose you reader on the way!

Twitter > We have just published new paper you might finduseful. See the link www.howtowritewell

