

Pluricultural Competence in Action

Session 6: Etiquette and Manners

Teacher: Athena Alchazidu and Kateřina Sedláčková

Term: Spring 2024

Session objectives

This session aims to acquaint students with the etiquette and manners as a concept that has diverse manifestations in particular cultural and social settings. As a result, participants will foster their pluricultural repertoire and develop their pluricultural competence.

Key concepts

- Etiquette
- Good manners
- Respectful Behaviour

1 Group work - preparation

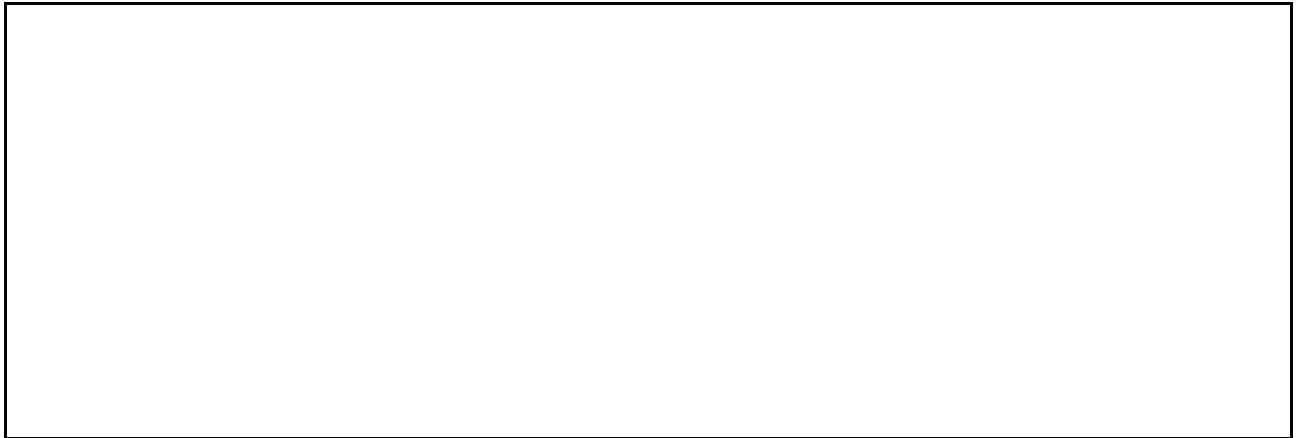

Form pairs, or groups of 3 and choose one of the topics to learn about and present.

- Etiquette:
 - changes and evolution in time within the same society/cultural area/region, etc.
 - Cultural differences in etiquette and how they influence Social interaction
- Politeness and good manners.
 - Changes and evolution in time within the same society/cultural area/region, etc.
 - Cultural differences in etiquette and how they influence Social interaction

Each group has a set of learning tasks to complete that include listening and reading tasks.

- Work together as a group to finish all the tasks.
- When you're ready, prepare a mini presentation for the other people in the class.

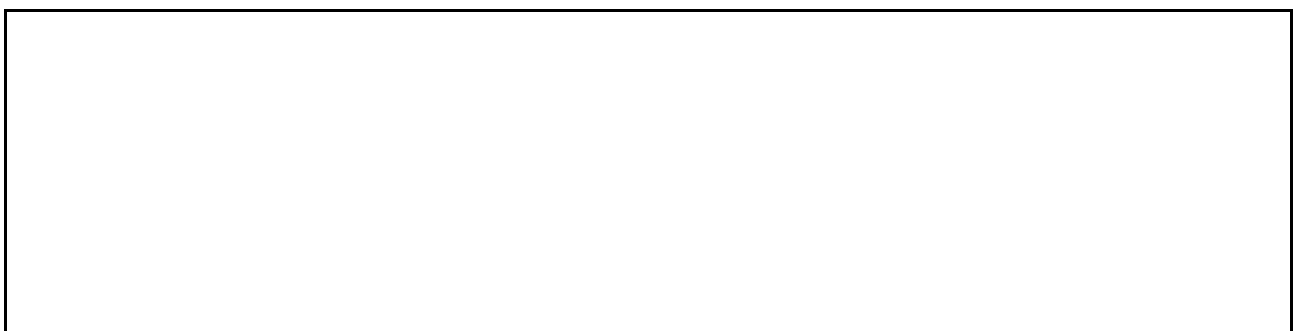

- The mini presentation should cover the following points:
 - a description of the main point(s) of the concept
 - some examples
- Prepare notes with the most important points to be able to cover key information and speak fluently.

Also, prepare a few questions for your audience to make sure they understood your presentation.

2 Group work – presentation

- Recreate groups so that there's at least one person knowledgeable about each concept.
- Take turns and present your concept.
- As you're listening to the presenters, take notes.
- You can ask them as many questions as you want to make sure you understand their presentation.

3 Class discussion

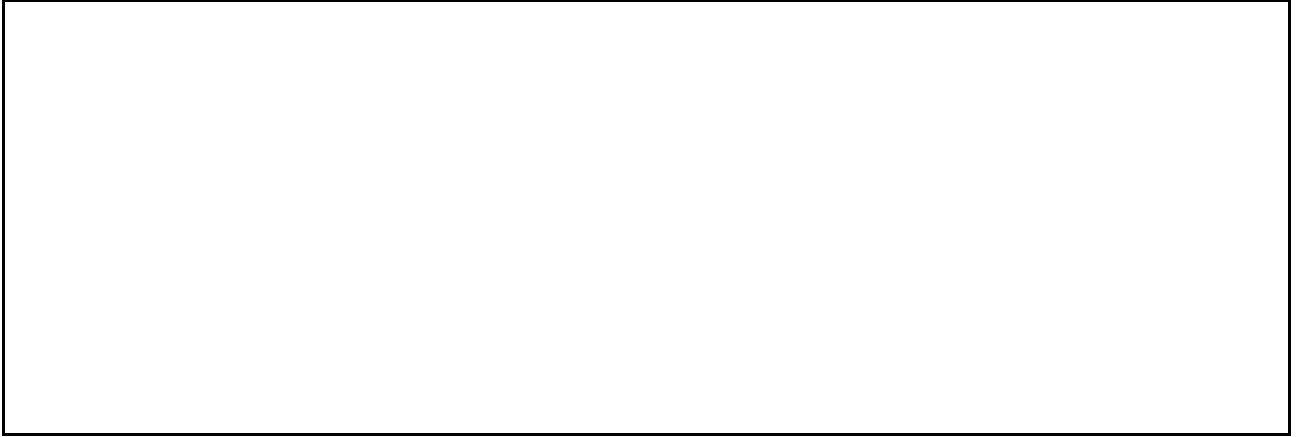

- Rearrange groups.
- In your group, discuss the following questions related to your topic:

Concept	Questions
