

Complete this story with a /an, the or no article (-).

It was (1)_____ rush hour, and (2)_____ long-distance commuter train was full. Every seat was taken and (3)_____ passengers were standing crowded together in (4)_____ aisles. In (5)_____ corner seat, (6)_____ young man in (7)_____ blue suit was talking loudly into (8)_____ mobile phone, to (9)_____ obvious annoyance of (10)_____ passengers around him. “I don’t care what they say,” he shouted. “Tell them it’s ten million or we don’t have (11)_____ deal.” And he switched off his phone.

At that moment, (12)_____ elderly man standing near (13)_____ door clutched at his chest and collapsed. For a moment there was (14)_____ silence as (15)_____ people stared at him in (16)_____ horror. Then (17)_____ women stepped forward to help him. “It’s all right,” she said, “I’m (18)_____ doctor.” She turned to (19)_____ young man in (20)_____ blue suit. “Quickly,” she said. “He’s having (21)_____ heart attack. Phone for (22)_____ ambulance to meet us at (23)_____ next station.” “I can’t,” said (24)_____ young man. (25)_____ woman was furious, and some of (26)_____ passengers started shouting. “It’s (27)_____ emergency!” But (28)_____ man still refused to use his phone.

Meanwhile, (29)_____ conductor arrived to find out what all (30)_____ noise was about. He instructed (31)_____ driver to radio ahead for (32)_____ medical assistance. Once her patient was safely on his way to (33)_____ hospital, (34)_____ doctor went up to (35)_____ young man. “So,” she said, “Why wouldn’t you use your phone?” He looked very embarrassed...

from International Express: Upper-intermediate