Introduction

- What is marketing?
- What are export, international, multinational, and global marketing?
- What are reasons for the differences?
- Definition and "synonyms" for international marketing?

- Marketing is the activity, set of institutions, and processes for creating, communicating, delivering, and exchanging offerings that have value for customers, clients, partners, and society at large.
- Unique feature of international marketing is its polycentric orientation with emphasis on product and promotional adaptation in foreign markets.
- Polycentric orientation refers to a predisposition of a firm to the existence of significant local cultural differences across markets, necessitating the operation in each country being viewed independently.

Core marketing concepts

Needs

- States of felt deprivation (physical food, warmth, safety, social belonging, affection and individual
  - knowledge, self-expression)

Wants

• The form taken by human needs as they are shaped by culture and individual personality or shaped by society and described in terms of objects that will satisfy needs

Demands

- Human wants that are backed with buying power
- Demand = Want + willingness to buy + ability to buy
- Demand may be brand specific (Adidas vs Nike vs Puma)

Export marketing begins with unsolicited orders from foreign customers.

The internationalization process is a consequence of incremental adjustments to the changing conditions of the company and its environment, rather than a result of its deliberate strategy.

Export marketers still tend to take an ethnocentric approach to foreign markets as being an extension of their domestic market and export products developed primarily for home country customers with limited adaptation to foreign customers' needs.

International marketing is the process by organizations:

- Identify needs and wants of customers in different markets
- Provide products, services and ideas competitively to satisfy needs and wants of different customer groups concerning issues different from domestic market
- Communicate information about the products and services with the proper adaptation to different customer perception rising from other country effect
- Deliver the products and services internationally

- Multinational marketing is when the company markets its products in many countries around the world.
- Management of the company comes to realize the benefit of economies of scale in product development, manufacturing, and marketing by consolidating some of its activities on a regional basis.
- This regiocentric approach suggests that product planning may be standardized within a region (e.g., a group of contiguous and similar countries), such as Western Europe, but not across regions.

- Product development, manufacturing, and marketing are all executed by each subsidiary for its own local market.
- Different product lines, product positioning, and pricing may be observed across those subsidiaries. Few economies of scale benefits can be obtained.
- Multi-domestic marketing is useful when customer needs are so different across different national markets that no common product or promotional strategy can be developed.

Global marketing is defined as the firm's commitment to coordinate its marketing activities across national boundaries in order to find and satisfy global customer needs better than the competition.

This implies that the firm is able to:

- develop a global marketing strategy, based on similarities and differences between markets
- exploit the knowledge of the headquarters (home organization) through worldwide diffusion (learning) and adaptations
- transfer knowledge and 'best practices' from any of its markets and use them in other international markets

Global marketing refers to marketing activities by companies that emphasize the following:

- Standardization —standardizing marketing programs across different countries particularly with respect to product offering, promotional mix, price, and channel structure
- Coordination —reducing cost inefficiencies and duplication of efforts among their national and regional subsidiaries
- Global Integration—participating in many major world markets to gain competitive leverage and effective integration of the firm's competitive campaigns across these markets by being able to subsidize operations in some markets with resources generated in others and responding to competitive attacks in one market by counterattacking in others

- Ethnocentric (domestic/export marketing)
- Polycentric (international marketing)
- Regiocentric (multinational marketing
- Geocentric (global marketing)

Ethnocentric orientation

- Home country is superior to others
- International markets are secondary, regarded as outlets for surplus production
- Sees only similarities in other countries
- Assumes products and practices that succeed at home will be successful everywhere
- Leads to a standardized or extension approach

Negatives

- Loss of demand
- No local responsiveness
- No anticipation of local needs
- 27 Introduction 21.09.2021

Polycentric

- Each country is unique
- Guided by the multi-domestic marketing concept
- Each subsidiary develops its own marketing strategies
- Fully decentralized, minimal coordination with headquarters
- Leads to a localized or adaptation approach that assumes products must be adapted to local market conditions

Negatives

- No economies of scale
- Duplicated functions
- Higher final costs
- 28 Introduction 21.09.2021

Regiocentric orientation

- A region is the relevant geographic unit
- Regional offices coordinate marketing activities
- Question: Is everything in one region same?

Geocentric orientation

- Entire world is a market
- Strives for integrated strategies
- Strategies aimed at market segments, rather than geographic locations
- Maximizes efficiencies worldwide and provides standardized product or service
- Retains an association with the headquarters country
- Pursues serving world markets from a single country

Domestic	Export Marketing	Multinational	Global
Marketing		Marketing	Marketing
Low or no	Limited international	Substantial	Extensive international	commitment	international	international
commitment	Involves direct or	commitment	commitment
Focus on domestic consumers and home country environment Domestic focus	indirect export	Focus on different international countries	Focus on regions market segments rather than countries
	Ethnocentric	Polycentric	Regiocentric Geocentric

Standardization vs. Adaptation

Globalization (standardization)

- Developing standardized products marketed worldwide with a standardized marketing mix
- Essence of mass marketing

Global localization (adaptation)

- Mixing standardization and customization in a way that minimizes costs
- Essence of segmentation
- "Think globally, act locally"

Internationalization Motives

-----------	-------	---------	-----	----------	--------

Proactive motives	Reactive motives
Profit and growth goals	Competitive pressures
Managerial urge	Domestic market: small and saturated
Technology competence/unique product	Overproduction/excess capacity
Foreign market opportunities/market information	Unsolicited foreign orders
