

Personal summary of participation on the team project

Think of each main task that you and your team were assigned:

In the first task I think that we based in personality test made in the task 0.

From the second task we were finding in what area we were more useful.

First task:

What is worth of appreciation?

We were lost and we needed more understanding about task.

What was annoying?

Nothing.

What have you learnt on it?

With this task, we got a good understanding of how to classify different types of business.

We understood the difficulty of starting a project with people who we don't know, but luckily we got on well soon.

Was there anything that have caused an aha-effect to you?

The presentation in class taught that the company was so weak and how we needed to strengthen.

Have you find the task useless? If so, please explain why?

Because we didn't understand a section of our first task, we made a list of our skills and our experience in work. At time we didn't help much, though unconsciously it helped us to see the qualities of each one.

Do you see any improvements that can be done by submitting the task?

We needed more contact and more help for understand what we were our errors.

Second task

What is worth of appreciation?

After the presentation in class began to improve the basis for the company, also we distribute our roles in the company.

What was annoying?

Nothing.

What have you learnt on it?

We learned the basic knowledge of typical marketing, as well as the main costs and typical suppliers required for each company. Also we need for external companies to facilitate the basic work.

Was there anything that have caused an aha-effect to you?

Personally I learned that I'm good at my role in the financial sector. This motivated me in the work.

Have you find the task useless? If so, please explain why?

This time we distribute the work and we operate in a fully efficient

Do you see any improvements that can be done by submitting the task?

We had a few doubts in some part of the task, but it was easy to solve.

Third task:

What is worth of appreciation?

In this task, we worked very well and only we have sent us a few emails and we have established the best result.

What was annoying?

Nothing.

What have you learnt on it?

This part really learned that it costs a company starting from scratch, Also we defined necessary and possible suppliers costs and support that the company could have it.

Was there anything that have caused an aha-effect to you?

I had to make a wide search for different budgets and suppliers that the company could have it.

Also I had to calculate the initial capital and how many translates we needed to get a positive balance.

Find all the possible reasons why the company could have problems and established a level of costs that I would ensure profitability.

So all this work showed me a large part we needed and how can we get it.

Have you find the task useless? If so, please explain why?

No, I think that in this third task we were coordinated and all work was very effective.

Do you see any improvements that can be done by submitting the task?

I think that in this part we could get better prices and better suppliers costs but It's very difficult.

What else have you learnt regardless of the task but relating to the PV251 course?

I have improved my work as a team and learned to see and understand different points of view of my classmates (this is not always easy).

We have used various types of online communication channels which it has helped us to improve our knowledge in this types of channels.

How did you feel to Be Assigned to the team of people you Did not know?

First I was a little nervous because my English level is not too good, and I didn't know what kind of partners I was going to assign me.

Luckily my partners helped me a lot and we have had a good and fluid environment working.

What are your main Contributions to the team work?

The whole team have worked to a greater or lesser degree in all fields, but my greatest contribution has been located in the financial sector. Everything related to costs, benefits, contract employees, suppliers, etc.

Was it easy for you to write down this summarization?

No, I don't know if I express properly myself my level English isn't good. It is very difficult to talk about different points of work and the qualities of my partners concise and summary form but I tried to do the best possible.
