PV207 - Business Process Management

1 Brief summary

Process starts with request for new chef from research and development (RD) department. Management writes offer of working conditions and requirements for chef's experience and education. Human resources (HR) department creates and publish job advert. If no one responds within one week, management adjust job requirements as necessary and HR department updates and publish job advert. When some chef sends job application to HR department, HR department checks if requirements are met. Then HR department sends an assignment to write recipes from prescribed ingredients to chef. If chef does not respond within 3 days, his application is rejected. If chef sends recipes, HR department checks if requirements are met and pass recipes to management. Management checks quality of recipes. If quality of recipes is sufficient, management set salary limit for chef. Then HR department negotiate salary with chef. Chef is accepted if he accepts offered salary within the limit. RD department is informed.
