L2 Sign client service

Client can approach the company with the request for an offer. Sales department employee then creates an offer for that client and the offer is reviewed by the sales department manager. Based on his feedback there are some changes to the offer or the offer is to the client. He then agrees or sends change requests for the offer. If the change requests requested by the client or the management are not possible client is notified about offer cancellation. Otherwise update offer is created. Once an final offer is agreed upon the sales department asks the legal department for contract and then the contract is signed.

It would be probably enough to model just company part.
