Hingis Beaten by Girl Wonder From Down Under

Wimbledon witnessed one of the _____(1) events in its 122-year history after top seed and world number one Martina Hingis was defeated in her opening game by the _____(2) Australian player Jelena Dokic, ranked 129th in the world.

Dokic, who is of Serbian origin, said after her victory: "I still can't believe I've beaten her. It's a big win for me, especially in the first round, coming from qualifying, but I thought I played quite well and I'm happy that I've won." Moments after her defeat, Hingis revealed that she was playing under the _____(3) strain and pressure and indicated that she needed a break from the game.

Hingis also revealed that she had decided to attend Wimbledon without her mother and coach Melanie Molitor because they needed some time apart from each other, after the tension of the last few weeks. Yesterday's match was the first time that the Swiss player's mother was not present at a _____(4) where her daughter was playing.

Hingis, aged 18, who has earned around $ 10m during her career, said: "I think I need to take some time off. Take a break and recover again."

Martina was criticised by the public and fellow players for her behaviour at the French Open, where she stopped playing when _____(5) a match to Steffi Graf. She commented on the event: "I was probably too nervous, not much believing what I can do or not. "... "I want to try it by myself here (at Wimbledon) and she (my mother) wanted to do her things. We decided to have a little bit of distance, as I said before, and probably work a bit more on our private lives." News of the separation is seen as a _____(6) of Hingis's emotional problems.

Many like Hingis have known little else other than tennis throughout their lives and are under constant pressure from their pushy parents and coaches to compete at tournaments and win. Martina began playing tennis at the age of seven and was the youngest-ever player to win a grand slam tournament when she became the Australian Open champion at the age of 16.

Despite the _____(7), Hingis said, she didn't want to break off all professional links with her mother and find a new coach: "We are going to talk about it and then we will make some more decisions. But right now, I need a break."
