Hungarian rule (since 10th century)

- 1867 – dualisation of Austria-Hungary → negative stance against minorities
- National oppression:
 - Press legislation
 - Abolishment of Slovak high schools
 - 1875 - dissolution of Slovak Motherland („Matica Slovenská“)
- Aim – creation of one nation without ethnic fragmentation

Slovak party „system“

- Political conditions:
 - No universal suffrage – only 7 % of people in 1918
 - Manipulations of elections
 - High barriers for achieving mandates
 - Low citizen participation and activity
- The result – nearly for the whole period until 1914 there was only one party representing the Slovaks

Slovak party „system“

- Slovak National Party (SNS, 1871):
 - Elite protestant party
 - Limited resources
 - Internal plurality – Agrarians, the catholic Slovak People's Party (SLS, gained independence in 1913)
- Less than 10 MPs in Parliament (out of 435) → minimal impact on the country's politics

1. Czechoslovak Republic (1918-1938)

- Two nations in different situation
- Higher development of the Czech part:
 - Economy and standard of living
 - Level of education
 - Character of political parties
- Czechoslovakism - the idea of one Czechoslovak nation

Population of Czechoslovakia (1921)

Nationality	Amount	Share (in %)
Czech	6,780,000	50.2
Slovak	1,990,000	14.7
German	3,123,000	23.1
Hungarian	745,000	5.5
Other	880,000	6.5
Sum	13,510,000	100

Population of Czechoslovakia (1921)

Nationality	Amount	Share (in %)
Czechoslovak	8,770,000	64.9
German	3,123,000	23.1
Hungarian	745,000	5.5
Other	880,000	6.5
Sum	13,510,000	100

1. Czechoslovak Republic (CSR)

- The political system:
 - Parliamentary democracy (PR electoral system)
 - Universal suffrage
 - Citizen freedoms
- Oligarchic bodies
- Changes in international situation in the 30s → degeneration of Czechoslovak democracy

Political parties in Slovakia

- System of one party changed to plurality
- Czech parties:
 - Changed names from „Czech“ to „Czechoslovak“
 - Only limited success in Slovakia
- Parties of ethnic minorities:
 - Hungarian and German
 - Oriented towards „their“ minorities
 - Mostly opposed to the idea of Czechoslovakia

„True“ Slovak parties in CSR

- Parties from the past as well as new parties
- Gained votes mostly in Slovakia
- Parties divided into two groups:
 - Autonomists – seeking Slovak autonomy
 - Centralists – accepting CSR
- The strongest actor – SLS – renamed to HSLŠ (Hlinka Slovak People's Party)

Hlinka Slovak People's Party

- Leader – Andrej Hlinka (Catholic priest)
- Ideology:
 - Catholic values
 - Never fully accepted liberal democratic ideas
- Highest electoral support in Slovakia
- Radicalization in the 30s

Elections

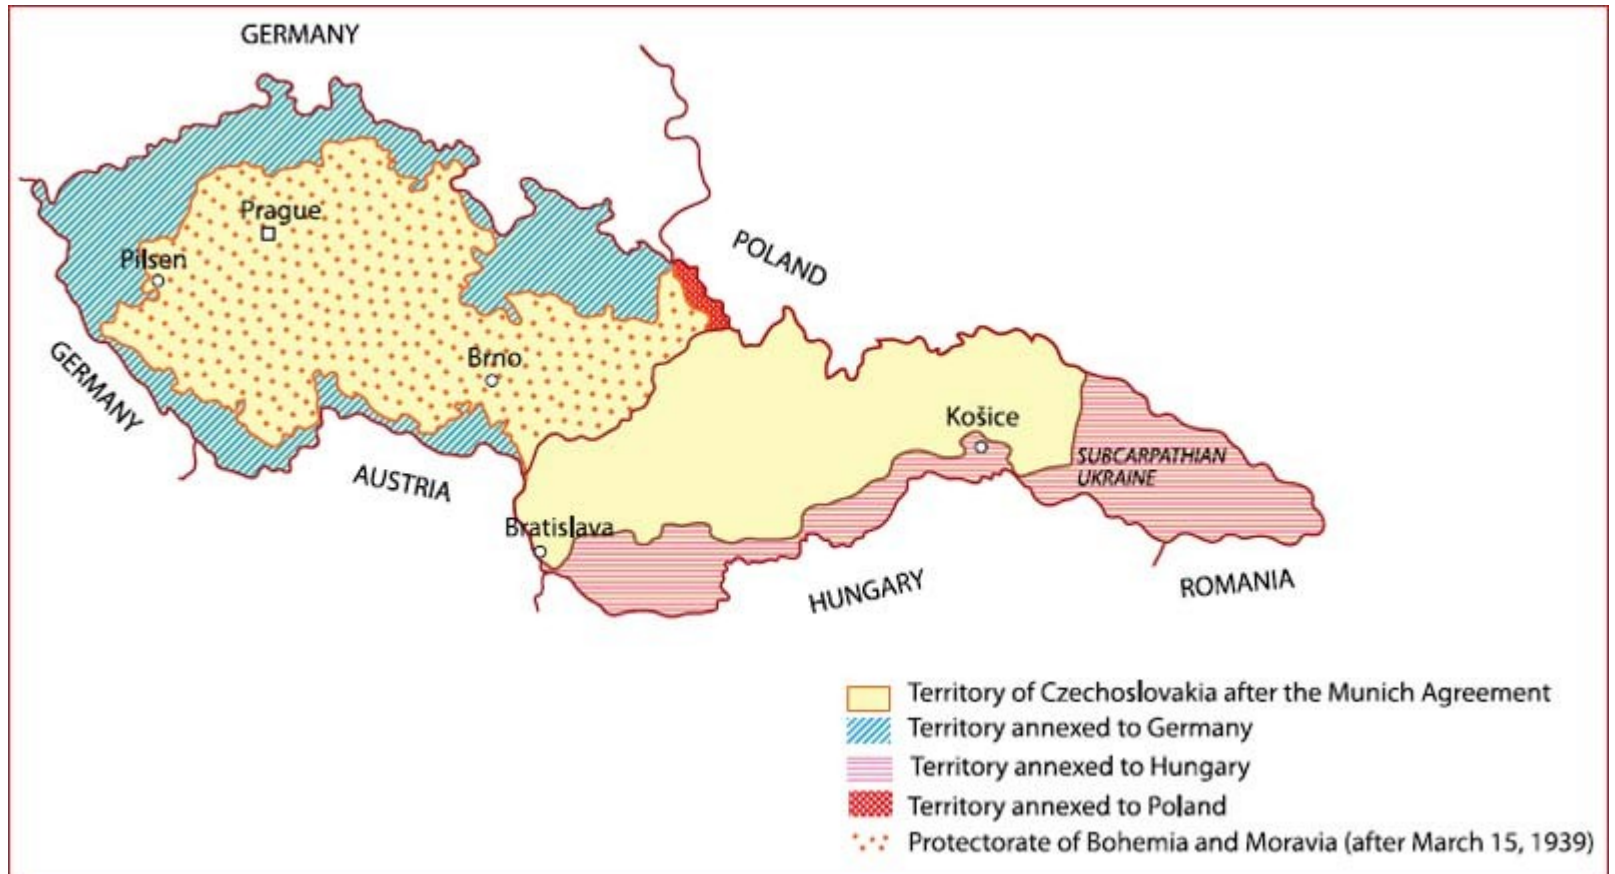

Political Party	1920	1925	1929	1935
HSLs	18,1	34,3	28,2	30,1
Agrarians	18,7	17,4	19,5	17,6
Communists	-	13,9	10,7	13
Social Democrats	39,4	4,3	9,5	11,4
Hungarian parties (Sum)	10,7	14,6	15,9	14,2
Czech parties (Sum)	2,3	6,4	11,6	9,7

Munich Agreement (1938)

- Beginning of the 2. CS Republic
- Degeneration of democracy in CSR
- Czech lands:
 - Two party system
 - No real competition
- Slovakia:
 - More straightforward decline of democracy
 - Hegemony of HSLS

Munich Agreement (1938)

Autonomy of Slovakia

- October 1938 – an official request by HSLS:
 - Signed by most Slovak parties
 - Refused by Social democrats and Communists
- November 1938 – Constitutional law granting autonomy to Slovakia:
 - Slovak Assembly
 - Slovak Government

Autonomy of Slovakia

- Hegemony of HSLS
- Other parties:
 - Forced to merge with HSLS
 - Social democrats and Communists were abolished
- Authoritarian tendencies of HSLS
- Democracy refused as „complicated“

Elections to Slovak Assembly (1938)

- „The one and only“
- A clear sign of non-democratic tendencies:
 - Single candidate list
 - Separate electoral rooms for different ethnic groups
 - Manipulative techniques
 - Violation of secret vote
 - Planned sanctions on people casting blank lists
- Result – 97,3 % for HSLS

The wartime Slovak State

- 1939-1945
- Satellite of the Third Reich
- Non-democratic regime
- President – „doctor“ Jozef Tiso

The wartime Slovak State

- Clear dominance of executive power
- Overlap of state and the party – Tiso as president and leader of HSLS
- Parliament (Assembly) without any real power
- Para-military forces – the Hlinka guard

The wartime Slovak State

- Two wings of HSLS:
 - 1. Conservative and more moderate (Tiso):
 - Catholic and corporatist ideas
 - 2. Radical (Tuka, Mach):
 - Inspiration in Nazi Germany
 - Connection with Hlinka Guard

1939 - 1940

- Authoritarian regime
- Catholic, conservative, corporatist values
- Weaker position of HSLŠ's radicals
- „The smiling Slovakia“
- Reaction → Hitler's request for a change

1940 - 1942

- Radical wing of HSLS gained power
- Conservative wing led by Tiso overpowered them but only by applying their techniques
- Tiso gained the title „Leader“ (Vodca; equivalent to German „Führer“ used by Hitler)
- Antisemitic laws, deportation of Jews (58 thousand in 1942) – 2/3 of Jews living in Slovakia

The erosion after 1942

- Main reasons:
 - Turnover in the Second World War
 - Lower trust of population
- 1944 – Slovak National Uprising – suppressed by German forces
- 1944-1945:
 - Slovakia under total control of Germany
 - Terror, revenge on partisans, restoration of deportation of Jews

After the World War II

- Third Czechoslovak Republic (1945-1948)
- Only a fiction of a democratic system
- Problematic features:
 - Dominance of the executive power (decrees)
 - Retribution justice
 - Limited plurality of the party system - only a few parties were allowed to exist (no German or Hungarian party)
 - Limited political competition among parties

Party system in 1945-1948

- National front:
 - Umbrella organization with parties as members
 - Decided which parties may exist
 - All parties had to follow the same political program (nationalization of property, foreign policy oriented to USSR)
- Slovak parties:
 - Communist party of Slovakia (KSS)
 - Democratic Party (DS)
 - Two other marginal parties

Democratic party (DS)

- Created by members of several former parties (SNS, Agrarians etc.)
- Civic and non-socialist party
- Protestant party vs. Catholic nation → Catholics added on candidate lists (two thirds)
- Ideas about the position of Slovakia → Czech parties including Slovak communists diminished the influence of Slovak political institutions

Elections 1946

- Democratic and free elections?

Czech lands			Slovakia
Party	Votes (%)	Seats	Party	Votes (%)	Seats
KSC	40,17	93	DS	62	43
CSNS	23,66	55	KSS	30,37	21
CSL	20,24	46	SS	3,73	3
CSSD	15,58	37	SP	3,11	2

After elections 1946

- Rising power of communists
- Infiltration of the state's power components – army, police, secret service, trade unions
- These trends were more straightforward in the Czech part of the state
- February 1948 – end of this time period

Communist rule (1948-1989)

- Totalitarian regime – terror, planned economy, sharp restrictions on human rights and freedoms
- Country and society fully under control of KSC
- Formal existence of „opposition“ parties
- Elections as a demonstration of the regime’s power
- Formal liquidation of Slovak political institutions (1948, 1960)

„Election“ results

Year	Votes (in %)	Blank lists
1948	86.60	994,419
1954	97.89	182,928
1960	99.86	12,775
1964	99.94	6,040
1971	99.81	-
1976	99.97	-
1981	99.96	-
1986	99.97	-

1960s and the Prague Spring

- Alexander Dubček as the first Slovak selected for the chairman of KSC
- „Socialism with a human face“
- Two nations with different aims:
 - Czechs – political reforms
 - Slovaks – federalization of the country

1968 – end of Prague Spring

- Czechoslovakia invaded by armies of the Warsaw Pact
- Stop to any liberalization for the next 20 years

After 1968

- Federalization (1970):

- Creation of national governments and parliaments (Slovak National Council continued in its existence)
- Ban of majoritarianism

→ Only formal changes – real politics remained unchanged

- Normalization (1969-1989):

- Restoration of the regime „before 1968“
- Sanctions against large groups of society
- Higher intensity in Czech part of the federation

Legacy for the period after 1989

- Specifics of the communist regime in Slovakia:
 - „Milder“ version of the regime when compared to Czech lands
 - Achievement of federalization (despite its formal character)
 - Economic modernization – industrialization, urbanization
- Effects:
 - Weaker dissent movement
 - Higher acceptance of several principles of the communist period
 - More sympathy towards the „middle way“ → support of less radical economic reforms after 1989
