Case Study - Nigeria

- Nigerian criminal gangs rose to prominence in the 1980s.
- Nigerian criminal organizations and networks are unique in both their ubiquity and the diverse nature of their activities.
- Factors influencing the rise of OC in Nigeria: weak institutions/bad leadership, weak civil society, multiple tribal groups and power centers, high levels of corruption, endemic poverty, weak correctional agencies and lack of synergy and prebendalism.
- Nigeria is “the only nation on earth among the top ten oil producing countries classified as poor.”
- Highly fluid in personnel and in methods of operation” ranging “from independent entrepreneurs to highly organized syndicates.
- Area Boys (Agberos), Confraternities - Neo Black Movement a.k.a. Black Axe, Supreme Vikings Confraternity and De Norsemen Kclub of Nigeria.
