Abstract

Energy efficiency improvements by households lead to rebound effects that offset the potential energy and emissions savings. Direct rebound effects result from increased demand for cheaper energy services, while indirect rebound effects result from increased demand for other goods and services that also require energy to provide. Research to date has focused upon the former, but both are important for climate change. This study estimates the combined direct and indirect rebound effects from seven measures that improve the energy efficiency of UK dwellings

Life hacks

- Clear all formatting
  - Instead of changing styles, clearing styles will convert whatever content to the “Normal text” format
  - Beware – this will erase formats of footnote and endnote links as well
- Formatting symbols
  - Toggling the icon of formatting symbols allows to inspect the structure of formatting
- Page break
  - Instead of lot of spaces, Ctrl+Enter will end the page and jump to next one
- Convert footnotes to endnotes
  - Editing footnotes might be pain – when converted to endnotes, all may be edited at once at the end of document
  - After editing, they may be converted to footnotes again

Captions and cross-references

- Captions allow to create table, figure or equation descriptions
- Based on captions, dynamic cross-references can be generated
  - Very useful for in-text referencing of objects located in the document
  - All values update automatically (e.g. renumbering)
  - An automatic list of figures/tables/equations may be generated
- Cross-references may also reference to heading and document structure
