

PRESENTATIONS OF STUDY MATERIALS ON TOPICS

- as a prerequisite to be admitted for final exam, all students are required to create and present a study material on one of the given topics for fellow students in any form you find useful (not necessarily powerpoint)
- the study material should include concise definitions of the terms related to the topic, as well as relevant context, examples of use, and grammatical information pertaining to these
- the presentation of the material in class should involve other students through an interactive activity – e.g. additional questions embedded in the presentation, an exercise to complete individually/in groups, a quiz etc.
- the presentation in class should not exceed 20 min, the topics are presented individually or max. in a pair
- if a topic is presented in a pair, the co-authorship should be balanced, i.e. both students should participate equally in preparation as well as presentation of the topic
- the topics to choose from are as follows (in chronological order):
  - colours
  - age and sex
  - facial expressions
  - inflammation
  - tumours
  - surgical procedures
  - pathologies
  - fever types
  - heart and pulse
  - death
- please assign to the topics using the following link (by adding your name under selected topic):
<https://docs.google.com/spreadsheets/d/19Bi9zBDfWI8GAe54-DmKUVTS4oRPQxCjkmW8vekJWcs/edit?usp=sharing>
- make sure your study material meets the following criteria:
  - clarity and comprehensibility of instruction;
  - correctness and accuracy of given information, incl. grammatically correct forms;
  - logical structure and conciseness;
  - interactivity and stimulating interest;
  - effectiveness, i.e. helps learning.
- submit your study material in advance (min. 3 days before) into the designated homework vault to receive a preliminary feedback and have a sufficient time to implement it
- if corrections are necessary after the presentation in class, upload the final, corrected, version of the study material into the homework vault
- teacher may grant students extra points (0-5), one point for each of the following:
  - submitting on time (i.e. min. 3 days ahead)
  - presentation skills
  - interactive activity
  - accuracy and completeness of information
  - other extraordinary achievement
