

Soil erosion caused as a result of tree clearance and cattle grazing in Queensland. This image shows rill erosion, which causes the loss of the most productive part of the soil.

An area of salinized land in South Australia. Projections indicate that large areas of arable land will become saline in the next few decades through the impact of land clearance and rising groundwater.

