A friend of mine once claimed that a good hotel could be distinguished by three features.

First,

..... Second,

..... And finally,

.....

..... Judging by my friend's view, then the hotel we stayed at in X was very bad indeed. For none of these three criteria was met. Instead of

..... Where we had expected

.....

..... And

.....

We had originally planned to stay for a week, but the conditions were so bad that we checked out after only two days. As we were leaving, I told the manager

..... He was very surprised and apologetic, and suggested

.....

..... I really felt another day there would drive me mad.
