

Fafnir Proudly Presents: Issue 1/2014 is Now Out!

Dear readers, we are proud to present the first ever issue of Fafnir – Nordic Journal of Science Fiction and Fantasy Research! This issue, themed "Opposing Forces", contains four articles that are fruits of the 2013 FINFAR seminar organised under the same theme. In addition to the articles, Fafnir 1/2014 offers you a seminar report, the history of FINFAR and a thought-provoking piece on the relationship between speculative fiction and mainstream literary theory.

The very first issue of Fafnir challenges its readers to put on their thinking caps, and get engaged in the discussion!

Table of Contents: Fafnir 1/2014

- Editorial
- Opposing Forces and Ethical Judgments in Samuel Delany's Stars in My Pocket like Grains of Sand (Päivi Väättänen)
- Agents or Pawns? Power Relations in William Gibson's Bigend Trilogy (Esko Suoranta)
- What is it that Fanfiction Opposes? The Shared and Communal Features of Firefly/Serenity Fanfiction (Hanna-Riikka Roine)
- Good and Evil in J.R.R. Tolkien's Legendarium: Concerning Dichotomy between Visible and Invisible (Jyrki Korpua)
- Scholars Opposing Forces: Report on FINFAR 2013 Meeting (Katja Kontturi)
- FINFAR: A Gift from Fandom to Academia (Liisa Rantalaiho)
- Peeking into the Neighbouring Grove: Speculative Fiction in the Work of Mainstream Scholars (Merja Polvinen)
- Call for Papers for the 3/2014 issue of Fafnir

And Siegfried thought he killed Fafnir. How wrong he was...! (From Wikimedia Commons)

P.S. The webpages of Fafnir are still under construction. Unfortunately, we do not yet have the option of downloading the articles and other material of the first issue as PDF. We will have it functional soon – in the meantime, thank you for your patience! We hope you enjoy our first ever issue in html.