- ▶ Although the British National Corpus may not have been exactly the kind of corpus John wanted it to be, it is safe to say that the BNC would never have existed without John's work. Almost everyone who ever worked on the project has to a greater or lesser extent been influenced by his thinking and, in many cases, worked directly with him. It is a cruel irony that his death should have occurred on the same day as we finalised a new edition of the corpus which includes for the first time a change in its internal tagging made on his recommendation. We dedicate that new edition to his memory
