Terms in Print Addresses:

Abbreviations and Phrases on Printed Images 1500-1900

Ad Stijnman

This is an updated version of Appendix 3 in my Engraving and Etching 1400–2000: A History of the Development of Manual Intaglio Printmaking Processes (London & Houten 2012), pp. 413–418. The text may be used with proper reference, and copied and disseminated freely as long as it is not changed in any way.

I gratefully acknowledge all those who have helped me in any possible way in compiling these lists.

Introduction

A large variety of abbreviations and phrases given in the so-called *ADDRESS(es) of prints and illustrations can be found from 1500. They supply information about who was involved in the production and publishing of the work and in what manner, to whom the work was dedicated, what the year of publication was, as well as about printing privileges.¹ These expressions are usually found in the lower margins of engravings, etchings and lithographs, less in woodcuts and wood engravings, rarely in metalcuts. Copper engravers started signing plates with their initials or marks from the 1450s.² The abbreviation F for fecit is used by Marcantonio Raimondi in MAF from c.1510. The term inventor is first used on engravings by Raimondi after Raphael c.1510–20 (INV.RAP.UR; RAPH.URBI.INVEN; RAF.URB.INVENT ROMAE). The abbreviation S for sculptor or sculpsit is used by Jacques Prévost in PS intertwined (S through lower part of P) in 1537.

Print publishers began expressing their involvements in prints in Germany in c.1515–1520 (Jost de Negker zu Augspurg), followed in Italy from the 1530s (Romae apud Philippum Thomassinum; Jouannes Baptista de Rubeis iunior formis Romae; Romae ex typis Antonÿ Lafreri; Ant. Lafrerii Formis; Ant. Sal. exc.) and by Hieronymus Cock in Antwerp after 1550 (excude). This may have derived from printers' devices in books that showed publishers' names or marks to which further information was given in letterpress.

Ugo Da Carpi applied for a privilege for his chiaroscuro printing in 1516. From the middle of the sixteenth century print publishers applied for privileges for particular prints or for all of their publications, which gave a legal base for prosecution in case of breach of the privilege (Erasmus Loy had specimens of his colour printed woodcuts stamped in black with phrases such as mit Rö. Kaij. Und Khu. Maij. Freijhait, nit Nachzudruckhen).<sup>3</sup> Multiple privileges and licences from authorities are also found, such as for Peter Paul Rubens who was granted triple privileges from the King of France, the Archduke of the Spanish Netherlands and the Dutch States General between 1619–1620.

Print addresses became standard following the professionalisation of the printing trade in the course of the sixteenth century. They were still used in the early nineteenth-century by lithographers and steel engravers signing their stones and plates, but declining in the second half of the nineteenth century when prints were produced by companies and not by individual craftsmen anymore. In the first half of the twentieth century only names of publishing and printing companies were left. Nowadays, the artist's name, title, year and edition number are often written in pencil in the margin beneath the impression or on the back of the print. This gradually became common in the second half of the nineteenth century, with antecedents going back to the late seventeenth century and similar manners in books.<sup>4</sup>

Explanatory note

Below two lists are presented. The first list is the Glossary with alphabetically ordered authorised terms, being a guide to the many Dutch, English, French, German, Italian, Latin, Spanish and Swedish terms, phrases and abbreviations as found in print addresses; per authorised term first the most common expressions are given, with alternatives following (also); cross references (see also) guide to related authorised terms. The second list is the Index containing all the expressions from the Glossary in alphabetical order with references to their authorised terms. Still more expressions can be found, but those given here will help understanding them.

Transcriptions:

- 'æ' is transcribed as 'ae': æs => aes
- 'cu' with a horizontal line or accent above it is transcribed as 'cum'
- 'i' with a horizontal line or accent above it is transcribed as 'in'
- i and j at the beginning of terms are transcribed as i: inv., jnv. => inv.
- i and j at the end of terms are transcribed as j: Mai., Maj. => Maj.
- u to be pronounced as v is transcribed as v: priuilegio => privilegio
- v to be pronounced as u is transcribed as u: dedicatvs => dedicatus

Otherwise transcriptions are literal, with any lines, dots or accents above letters as well as ligatures ignored, although for clarity in some cases abbreviations are written in full between square brackets or with an additional scope note or with a translation or with a period, such as 'sup[er]. p[er]m.' or 'jnu. [= inv.]' or 'di Greg. PP. xiij ex privil. per an. X [= ten year privilege from Pope Gregory XII]' or '[early 18th century]'.

Different spellings are transcribed the way they are, such as 'prevelegio'.

Apparent mistakes in the original are transcribed the way they are, such as 'dilin.' (in letterpress) stays 'dilin.', although it was changed to 'delin.' in variant 2 of state I, probably a correction made at the press (see Christoffel Jegher, 'Portrait of a Man' after Peter Paul Rubens; H. IX.192.20-I).

Publishers added their places of publication in engravings and woodcuts from the first quarter of the sixteenth century; engravers started adding names of places where they worked from the middle of the eighteenth century.

For Latin place names see: J.G.T. Graesse, F. Benedict, Orbis Latinus: Lexikon lateinischer geographischer Namen des Mittelalters und der Neuzeit; Großausgabe, eds. H. Plechl and S.-C. Plechl, (Braunschweig 1972). § The website http://www.columbia.edu/acis/ets/Graesse/contents.html transcribes the 1909 edition of Graesse's dictionary and enables searching by word-image. However, the printed editions of 1971 and 1972 are more up to date and the 1972 edition mentioned above has more place names.

Bart Coriolanus Incidit Roma 1627.

- o it is common to find an image of a small knife or chisel next to the initials, name or mark of the blockcutter, examples:
- Jost de Negker (c.1485–1544) working for Lucas van Leyden in 1508, with the monogram forming a triangular blade:

o "H [knife] H", Heinrich Holzmüller (fl. c.1550):

o "[knife] CM", Monogrammist working for Tobias Stimmer in 1583:

o "[knife] MF", Monogrammist working for Tobias Stimmer in 1583:

o "[knife] HS", Monogrammist (fl. c.1550):

o "Leon de Laborde // [knife]", working first half of the 19th century, in two variants:

o "PF // 1546", the elaborate example shown here is from a woodcut by Peter Flöttner (c.1485–1546), showing two mallets, two chisels and (presumably) a grinding stone underneath the initials:

o [mallet and two chisels] // "PF", Peter Flöttner (c.1485–1546) has cut:

o "IW // [knife]", Johann Wyssenbach (fl. c.1550) has cut

o "[pen] // RW // [knife]", Rudolph Wyssenbach (fl. 1545–1560) has designed and cut; see also under DRAUGHTSMAN > HAS DRAWN
