History

VOCABULARY – Task 1: Describe the timeline with the following terms:
Middle, bronze, invasion, neolithic, treaty, ancient, dynasty, modern, war, prehistorical, crusade, built, era, empire, act, pharaoh, age

READING TECHNIQUES:

Task 2: Match the pieces of texts below with the names of the following people in history.

1. Vladimir Lenin (1870 - 1924)
2. Joan of Arc (1412-1431)
3. Catherine the Great (1729-1796)
4. Francisco Pizarro (1470 - 1541)
5. Qin Shi Huang (259 BC – 210 BC)
6. Mbande Nzinga (1582-1663)
7. Winston Churchill (1874- 1965)

a) Born into a peasant family, she became a French heroine by leading the army of Charles VII against the English at Orleans. Captured by the Burgundians, and held by the English, she was put on trial on charges of witchcraft and fraud. She was charged only for wearing male clothes, an offence against the Church, and was burned at the stake. Her legend grew and she was canonized in 1920.

b) After unifying China, he and his chief advisor Li Si passed a series of major economic and political reforms. He undertook gigantic projects, including the first version of the Great Wall of China, the now famous city-sized mausoleum guarded by a life-sized Terracotta Army, and a massive national road system, all at the expense of numerous lives. To ensure stability, Qin Shi Huang outlawed and burned many books.

c) He was the illegitimate son of a prominent soldier in the army of the great captain Gonsalvo de Córdoba, and was born at Trujillo, in Estremadura, Spain. He sailed for America and formed a partnership with Diego de Almagro to explore the country discovered by Andagoya to the south of the Isthmus. His conquest of Peru is a drama, in every act of which there is bloodshed; but the drama is at least consistent to the end. He lived a life of violence, and died a violent and bloody death.

d) As the queen of the Ndongo and Matamba kingdoms she was honoured for her resistance against the Portuguese occupying these parts of Africa. She organized a powerful guerrilla army, conquered the Matamba, developed alliances to control the slave routes, and even formed an alliance with the Dutch, who helped her stop the Portuguese. She eventually negotiated a peace treaty with the Portuguese, but still refused to pay tribute to their king.

e) She arrived in Russia from Germany in 1744 to marry the 16-year-old Grand Duke Peter. His unpopularity allowed her to remove him from power, plan his death, and declare herself the ruler of Russia. She supported progressive ideas, such as reforms in law, education, and administration. However, she ruled as an autocrat, suppressed Polish nationalists (which led to Poland's partition), and took the Crimea and parts of the Black Sea coast from Turkey.

f) His father was a prominent politician, he attended the Royal Military College. While working as a journalist during the Boer War he was captured and made a prisoner-of-war before escaping. In 1904 he joined the Liberal Party, becoming home secretary in 1910. He held this post in the first months of World War One, but later he resigned and joined the army. The following decade were his 'wilderness years', he became unpopular and his warnings about the rise of Nazi Germany were ignored.

g) Born into a well-educated family, he went to study law. At university, he was exposed to radical thinking. Expelled, he completed his law degree as an external student. He became a professional revolutionary and like many of his contemporaries, got arrested and exiled to Siberia. He spent most of the subsequent decade and a half in Western Europe. In 1917, assisted by the Germans, he returned home and started working against the provisional government that had overthrown the tsarist regime.

Task 3: Find the answers.

1. When did Lenin return home?
2. Where was Francisco Pizarro born?
3. Who did Mbande Nzinga ally with?
4. When was Joan of Arc canonized?
5. Why did Qin Shi Huang burn books?

CRITICAL READING: Winston Churchill and the bombing of Dresden

In February 1945, Britain sent 300 Lancaster bombers to attack the crowded German city of Dresden. This attack was not the precision bombing of specific military targets. It was deliberate bombing of a whole area. The bombs destroyed city buildings and started tremendous fires. The German armies were in retreat at this time and the war was nearly over.

Some historians have argued that this attack was not justifiable on military grounds, that it was nothing more than a slaughter of civilians. But others say it helped to shorten the war in Europe.

Ultimate responsibility for this attack lay with the British Prime Minister, Winston Churchill. Was the bombing of Dresden a justifiable act during wartime? Does this cast a shadow upon Churchill's reputation as the heroic icon of twentieth century British history?

Task 4: Compare the two drafts of a letter from Churchill on area bombing and answer the following questions:

1. What is Churchill's view of the bombing of Dresden, according to these drafts?
2. What does Churchill feel should be the target of bombing raids?
3. What reasons might Churchill have had for his opposition to the bombing?
4. What is different in the wording of the two drafts?
5. The first draft of the letter was never sent. Why do you think Churchill rewrote this letter?

It seems to me that the moment has come when the question of bombing of German cities simply for the sake of increasing the terror, though under other pretexts, should be reviewed. Otherwise we shall come into control of an utterly ruined land. We shall not, for instance, be able to get housing materials out of Germany for our own needs because some temporary provision would have to be made for the Germans themselves. The destruction of Dresden remains a serious query against the conduct of Allied bombing. I am of the opinion that military objectives must henceforth be more strictly studied in our own interests rather than that of the enemy.

The Foreign Secretary has spoken to me on this subject, and I feel the need for more precise concentration upon military objectives, such as oil and communications behind the immediate battle-zone, rather than on mere acts of terror and wanton destruction, however impressive. (28 March 1945)

It seems to me that the moment has come when the question of the so called "area bombing" of German cities should be reviewed from the point of view of our own interests. If we come into control of an entirely ruined land, there will be a great shortage of accommodation for ourselves and our Allies: and we shall be unable to get housing materials out of Germany for our own needs because some temporary provision would have to be made for the Germans themselves. We must see to it that our attacks do not do more harm to ourselves in the long run than they do to the enemy's immediate war effort. Pray let me have your views. (1 April 1945)

Why target Dresden?

In October 1944, a report was made on Dresden as a potential bombing target. It concluded: 'Compared to other towns of its size, Dresden is therefore an unattractive blitz target'. Yet four months later, Dresden had become the chosen target. What had changed?
