My Australia Analysis

My Australia is my favorite film we have watched so far this quarter. I believe this film blends together a comedy and a romantic style, by having an amazing cast with a very witty script to feed off of.

To begin, this film in my opinion is not a political one but rather a representation about how a younger mind is easily manipulated. Where he alone does not know what the power of being exposed to different groups is like. Also, the youngest character is a powerful representation of finding your inner child where we see this in multiple scenes. He is constantly the one who is having a mentality of the glass is half full rather than half empty. His personality was fun to watch develop as he learns more about what his faith means. Personally also being a Christian I could relate to times he was going through and was a pleasant surprise to see how much the filmmaker focused on this aspect in the film. Throughout the film there were numerous lines and scene where I was laughing which was a nice change in pace due to the amount of dramatic and war style movies we have been watching this quarter. I enjoyed this film and was very well done which

To conclude, this film portrays how having a younger mindset when dealing with very political and social issues turns your perspective inversely.
