

10.10.2019

Narrative essay – purpose? communicate information in an interesting way, say some educational stuff in an easy form, tell some story

Audience? Students, teachers, some academic people, teenagers, probably more young people than older ones,

Form? It has to have a title, introduction(background info.), main part(details, storytelling) and conclusion, written in personal or objective way, using short sentences with the clear meaning, it has to be easy to read it and understand

Why I choose this? I like the vibes of these essays, they show a lot of writers potential, its easy to read and it is interesting

(blog, documentary)

Persuasive essay – purpose? To convince somebody about something, describe a situation and prove whether against or for it. Persuade the reader through the examples and so on to do or not to do certain things

Audience? Someone who needs an advice, be sure about something, looking some informations (parents, employees, couples...)

Form? Using arguments, firstly secondly..., asking rhetorical questions, giving facts and examples,

Why I choose this? Its really interesting how someones else opinion can be beneficial and actually be used for readers actions

(how to guide, recipe)

Descriptive essay – purpose? presents a person, place, or thing, in a way that readers feel as if it is in front of their eyes, or that they are tasting it, or that they can hear it, or that they can smell it.

Audience? Some poetic and sensitive souls (??)

Form? 5 paragraphs, sensory information, use of five senses, clear and concise language, thesis statement at the end of the introduction, using wider vocab

Why I choose this? forming the words into the way that reader can imagine it smell it and somehow feel influences by this is impressive

(artwork, documentary)