Lunchmeat
Prague, Czech Republic
25-30 September

Line up: Marina Herlop, CORIN, Otik

Prague’s Lunchmeat festival has always prided – and proved – itself an essential destination for cutting edge innovation within electronic music and digital art. This year’s outing speaks directly to this ethos – boasting a line-up that takes in everything from Evian Christ’s live audiovisual show (sunglasses recommended) to a collaboration between Slikback and Weirdcore, a show from experimental composer Marina Herlop, and a Zoë Mc Pherson performance with visual artist Alessandra Leone. Experiences to get lost in across the Czech capital.

Prague's pioneering celebration of all things audiovisual returns for its 10th anniversary, bringing with it an incredible selection of experimental electronic music, mind-expanding visuals and cutting edge new media art.

Returning to Lunchmeat Festival for its 10th anniversary felt like a homecoming in more ways than one. This was partly due to the welcome return of all the things that make the annual
